The One and Only

Who made the world?
Who made the swan, and the black bear?
Who made the grasshopper?
This grasshopper, I mean . . .
Doesn't everything die at last, and too soon?
Tell me, what is it you plan to do with your one wild and precious life?

-Mary Oliver-

Mary Clare Conley, who was known by friends and family alike, as Molly, died last Saturday evening, shot in the neck while walking in Lake Stevens. Her death has sparked condemnations of violence and great outpourings of grief and pain. Images of Molly-photographs and video, anecdotes and one-liners—have portrayed her as student and athlete, as a kind girl with a wondrous smile and as a unifying presence who drew others together and inspired them to greater effort and greater good. Such descriptions and stories, like the photographs and videos, comfort those who tell them and those who hear them. They allow us to place this crushing loss within categories we can begin to understand, to make Molly an image, a type of person we can continue to know and recognize. They give order, even in the midst of pain, to our spinning and struggling hearts. But even if such images offer elements that are true, they are somehow not enough to bring us consolation; for they fall short of the great truth that Christ has revealed.

For the God, revealed in Jesus Christ, is not a God of generalities or image, but of particularity and being. This God, who veins violets, delicate and diverse, each one unique in loveliness; who builds mountains, no two of which are ever the same; this God who pours down oak leaves in shades as varied as the hues of sunset, and plumes even the simple blue jay so that each wing is its own, unique testament of grace: this God of music and number, of pine needles and snowflakes: this God transcends typologies and categories, those useful abstractions that our minds construct. So it is that God comes to us not as a series of universal statements, or as a necessary principle of mathematics, but as one particular person, living in a definite time and place, amid a culture composed of countless voices and smells, dispositions and frustrations. The great grace of our Catholic tradition is that Christ Jesus, who is our center and our guide, is universal only in his particular and personal engagement of each woman or man, of each heart and mind, of each fragile and miraculous life.

Jesus comes not to save Humanity—the abstract and universal concept to which so many individuals have been sacrificed. Rather, Jesus comes to save human beings, or better still, to save each human being: to save you, who is reading these words right now; to save me, who is writing them, while filled with a vague anxiety that I will not find words to say what I mean. This is why there are four gospels, each on distinct and different in small or large ways. This diversity is, itself, part of the gospel, a revelation that the Christ's salvation of the world is not worked out in a simple historical sequence, but in a communion with real people, who see things differently and experience things in a way that cannot be reduced to simplistic generalities. The gospel is played out in every heart and everyone who encounters the Lord in his own skin, in her own moments of prayer and desperation. Jesus comes to each of us, not by placing us within our type, but by engaging us and loving us in our unique identity as this person—as distinct and unique as any snowflake or violet or grasshopper, jumping across the path. Only in recognizing this do we see the wonder of God's love for us. For each of us there is a gospel meant only for us; and each of us is living the salvation no one else can ever live. We are, each and every one, a world unfolding and developing, not in narcissistic or egotistic loneliness, but in a blessed eco-system of grace; where each unique person contributes to the great unfolding of God, just as each flower contributes to the great unfolding of Spring. We are united to each other not by being reduced to one general type, but by being raised in one universal Spirit of love; it is the ground in which we live, the air in which we breathe, the light that nourishes us into ourselves.

And whenever even one of us is diminished or destroyed, reduced to an object or silenced in the gray fog of conformity, all of us lose something irreplaceable: lose an entire world.

Molly was not a type: i.e., she could not be reduced to being a student, nor an athlete, nor a daughter, nor victim of violence—though she carried in herself, or had inflicted upon her, all of those things. Yet, deeper than any of those, deeper than the categories or conditions by which we hope to capture her and understand her death, she was Molly: unique, ineffable, and irreducible to any category or group of categories. There had never been another like her in the whole history of the universe; nor will there ever be. In that single moment, an entire world stopped.

It is this that we truly mourn; it is this we ask God to redeem; it is this we can only honor by becoming what we are—that unique person who is, as Molly was, the glory of God in this world.

St. Joseph Community extends its prayers and hopes for the following intentions: Comforting and consoling the family and friends of Blanchet High School freshman Molly Conley . . . For foster families who bring love and caring to the children in their homes . . . For those who are having health challenges with their breathing and walking . . . For a mother who had a stroke . . . That the remodel of our home goes well as we prepare a place for toddler grandson . . . For a dad who has been diagnosed with prostate cancer . . . For Daniel who is in the intensive care unit at Seattle Children's Hospital.

"Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows."

~Isaiah 53:4

St. Vincent de Paul

Some Vincentians recently paid a visit to a fellow named "Bob" who needed some help. Bob is a 59 year old man living on his own in a public housing project. Thirteen years ago Bob was in a car accident that left him unable to stand or walk for even the shortest stretch of time, and impaired his thinking, leaving him unable to work. Since then he has been on Social Security Disability. Last month he was informed by letter that he was going to be dropped from the disability rolls because someone at Social Security said he should be able to work.

Bob is scheduled to see his doctor in order to get the paperwork started to reverse this decision. In the meantime he called us. We were able to pay his rent for the month which should keep him in his apartment until his case is reversed and his checks start coming again.

The donations you make, in the form of cash on our first Sunday collections, and the items you donate for sale at our stores make it possible for us to help people like Bob. Thank you!

Texts and Tunes

"The Singing Thing"
Weekly Reflections on the music we use at St Joseph's
~Robert McCaffery-Lent

For our song of praise this weekend we are singing the hymn: "Lord, Whose Love In Humble Service." Albert F. Bayly wrote this text in response to a Hymn Society of America search for new hymns on social welfare. It was chosen as the theme hymn for the Second National Conference on the Churches and Social Welfare held in Cleveland, Ohio, October 23-27, 1961. The Hymn Society published the text in Seven New Social Welfare Hymns (1961).

Deacon Steve and I met early this week and talked about the readings and the direction he was thinking his homily might take by the time it was fully evolved on the weekend. This hymn struck me as one that might help tie together the music we sing with his preaching. This particular hymn text begins with recognition of Christ's ultimate sacrifice on the cross and then points to the continuing needs of the homeless, the hungry, the prisoners, and mourners. Bayly's words remind us of modern refugees, AIDS patients, and famine victims who are as close as our doorstep or who are brought to our attention via the news media. The final two stanzas encourage us to move from Sunday worship to weekday service; such integrity in the Christian life is truly a liturgy of sacrifice, pleasing to God.

There are a number of hymn tunes that can be used for this hymn text. Remember that texts are tunes are independent of one another, usually not composed by the same person and often not even in the same century! One only needs to match up the meter of the text with another tune having the same meter. The meter and name of the tune are always written in the small print copyrights directly below the song in the hymnal. For example, the familiar song Joyful, Joyful We Adore You at #528 in Gather has the meter 8787D and the tune name: HYMN TO JOY. In fact we COULD have sung today's song of praise to this hymn tune because Lord Whose Love In Humble Service also has the meter 8787D. (8 syllables followed by 7 syllables, followed by 8 and 7 again...then the whole thing is doubled) Instead I have chosen HOLY MANNA which is a tune I have long loved for its openness, tunefulness and straightforward strength that, to my ear, characterizes a lot of Early American folk hymns from tunebooks such as the Sacred Harp and Columbian Harmony. The tune is attributed to William Moore who published the tunebook Columbian Harmony.

A Blessing For the Relationship of Chief Seattle Club & St. Joseph Parish

Blessed be, O Spirit, the People and the song that echoes in the city and the halls of Chief Seattle Club, and that brings a message to St. Joseph.

May we be brothers in the singing, sisters in the living of Creator's will.

May the grandmothers call us, and the children restore us, in thanks, in grace, in blessing forever and ever.

Amen.

St. Joseph Parish in the Pride Parade!

Mark your calendar & put on your walking shoes!

Last year, St. Joseph Parish members were invited for the first time to march in the Seattle Pride Parade, and our banner was greeted with cheers and tears of appreciation--and with new members who came to join St. Joe's. This year, with our own designated place in the parade, we want to invite members of the Parish Community to come out and show your spirit & support of our LGBT sisters & brothers! Come and share the joy of our mission with a wonderful cross-section of Seattle--and get a good walk in for a June day!

Gathering begins Sunday, 30 June, 11:00 am, look for location information in the weeks to come.

For further information, e-mail Michael Bunney at michael.bunney@comcast.net

Let's have a big turn-out and be a blessing for our city!

Pathfinder Thank You's

A GREAT BIG THANK YOU to the following Pathfinder adult leaders for their dedication to our parish's middle school youth: Kyle Bigham, Ian and Elena Brown, Christopher Campbell, Maggie Chambers, Krista Fink, Melissa Protz, and Terri Stewart

You make Pathfinders a great place to be for our youth. You are the BEST!!

Parish Blood Drive Imagine Saving A Life

Summer is upon us! It brings many fun-filled and hopefully, sunny days. Unfortunately, it also brings frequent blood shortages. Did you know that 25% of our blood supply is from high school and college students? When schools break for summer, it is very difficult for us to capture these donations. Plus, donors are distracted by vacations, BBQs and all things summery. More than ever, this is when we need the help of our churches and community groups. If you only give once or twice a year, consider donating just once more- over the summer. Haven't donated in a long time? It's never too late to get back into it! Encourage your friends, family members and neighbors to join you in this important act of community service! As an additional incentive, if you donate twice over the summer you will be able to receive our "Give Twice Cookbook" filled with many wonderful recipes from PSBC staff, volunteers and donors.

There is currently a 10 year old girl named Kyra in our area who is waiting for a bone marrow match. In the meantime, she is relying on blood transfusions to keep her alive. She won't be able to run through sprinklers, eat watermelon or watch 4th of July fireworks this summer. But, with the help of Puget Sound donors, and hopefully a bone marrow match as soon as possible, she will get to grow up through many more summers to come! Your blood donation has a REAL and LASTING impact.

Monday, June 17th from 1:00 pm to 7:00 pm, St Joseph's Parish Center.

Sign up with Renee Leet in the Parish Office.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact Krista Fink with Puget Sound Blood Center, (206) 422-1686

Summertime and the Praying is Easy...

With the coming of summer, many things change for the St. Joseph Parish community: People go away, visitors come, the days are long and the nights are brief. This year in response to your input, St. Joseph Church will change it's schedule to 3 Masses per weekend.

Beginning on Sunday July 7th to Sunday, September 1st the weekend schedule of Masses for St. Joseph will be changed! Then on Sunday September 8th we will return to our current schedule of Masses!

Saturday Vigil Mass 5 PM
Sunday Morning Mass 9:30 AM
Sunday Evening Mass 5:30 PM
