Pope on Migrants & Refugees

From the Christian standpoint, the reality of migration, like other human realities, points to the tension between the beauty of creation, marked by Grace and the Redemption, and the mystery of sin. Solidarity, acceptance, and signs of fraternity and understanding exist side by side with rejection, discrimination, trafficking and exploitation, suffering and death. Particularly disturbing are those situations where migration is not only involuntary, but actually set in motion by various forms of human trafficking and enslavement. Nowadays, "slave labour" is common coin! Yet despite the problems, risks and difficulties to be faced, great numbers of migrants and refugees continue to be inspired by confidence and hope; in their hearts they long for a better future, not only for themselves but for their families and those closest to them.

What is involved in the creation of "a better world"? The expression does not allude naively to abstract notions or unattainable ideals; rather, it aims at an authentic and integral development, at efforts to provide dignified living conditions for everyone, at finding just responses to the needs of individuals and families, and at ensuring that God's gift of creation is respected, safeguarded and cultivated. The Venerable Paul VI described the aspirations of people today in this way: "to secure a sure food supply, cures for diseases and steady employment... to exercise greater personal responsibility; to do more, to learn more, and have more, in order to be more" (Populorum Progressio, 6).

Amos & Us

*Hear this, you who trample upon the needy and destroy the poor of the land!
“When will the new moon be over,” you ask,
“that we may sell our grain,
and the sabbath, that we may display our wheat?
We will buy the lowly for silver,
and the poor for a pair of sandals;
even the refuse of the wheat we will sell!”
The Lord has sworn by the pride of Jacob:
Never will I forget a thing they have done!*

-Amos 8: 4-5a, 6-7-

*Don't speak to me about politics.
I've got eyes, man!*

-Sharon Olds-

In ancient Israel, there were no food stamps or welfare offices; yet, the care of the poor was considered a foundational dimension of the Covenant with God. The inseparable bond between love of God, through prayer and worship, and care of one's neighbor, through acts of justice and love, does not begin with Jesus; rather, it can be found in the earliest texts of the Jewish people, and was an integral part of the Mosaic Law. The Sabbath, for example, was both a time to honor God, a means to guarantee that working women and men would have time for rest and family—at least once a week. Likewise, on the New Moon, work was to be suspended so that rest could be taken and families could be together. In a similar way, the Law called for those with fields of grain to harvest them in a single sweep of workers. When this initial harvest was complete, the poor were to be allowed to go through the field and pick up whatever was missed, thus ensuring that those who had no means would at least not starve. While property was respected, it was not seen as absolute, but always as part of the beneficence of God, who abundantly blessed the people, and expected them to bless one another. Even foreigners and aliens in the land were to be treated with dignity and respect, since the people of Israel had themselves been strangers and aliens in the land of Egypt.

But, if the Law and the Covenant sought to support principles of the common good and care of even the most powerless, human greed and weakness—that weed within our souls—always seems to find fertile soil among those for whom such justice means sacrifice. So it was that by the time of the Prophet Amos, the day of the Sabbath and the New Moon were annoyances for the wealthy merchants, days when they would seek to get their religious obligations out to the way through ritual and prayer, so that they could get back to their real concern of making more money at the expense of the poor. Two thousand years before Adam Smith wrote The Wealth of Nations, these merchants already knew about supply and demand, and the commodification of labor—thus they knew they could “buy the lowly for silver, / and the poor for a pair of sandals.” Nor were they willing to let go any of their marketable produce to the unemployed or the taker class (e.g., widows and orphans) selling even the refuse of their wheat—the leftovers and the trash—for silage and feed for their cattle. With great zeal, these wealthy would offer sacrifice in the Temple and stand piously before the assembly—yet, always, at the heart of their prestige was the wealth they made on the backs of the poor.

The prophets—from Amos to John the Baptist—point to the hypocrisy and sin at the root of such worship. They note that that religious service to God, separated from justice and effective care of the poor is an abomination, a lie that strikes at the very heart of God's relationship with the world as Creator and Redeemer. We can speak of the “invisible hand” or “the free market,” of competitive labor or the genius of capitalism, but, as the whole of Scripture makes clear: the choice of wealth, when earned through the suffering and impoverishment of others, is a form of idolatry that no sacrifice can assuage, no Temple gift can cleanse, no economic theory can justify. We, who have been baptized as priests, prophets, and kings, must continue to speak this truth to the world—and to our own hearts—if we are to manifest the God of Jesus Christ, and the gospel we have received.

In these days, when Congress is debating huge cuts to food stamps and other social services (the modern equivalent of gleaning the fields), when the sequester has put many more on the border of poverty, and the wars of our nation have taken trillions of dollars from the national treasure; when veterans take years to get benefits and immigrants are treated as enemies; when the disparity of wealth grows greater and the voice of the poor in our government grows less, let us listen to the call of the Covenant and the words of the Prophet. What is God asking of us? What must we do to be Christ for this world?

The Canticle of the Creatures, by St. Francis of Assisi

Most High, all-powerful, good Lord, Yours are the praises, the glory, and the honor, and all blessing,

*To You alone, Most High, do they belong,
and no human is worthy to mention Your name.
Praised be You, my Lord, with all Your creatures,
especially Sir Brother Sun,
Who is the day and through whom You give us light.
And he is beautiful and radiant with great splendor;
and bears a likeness of You, Most High One.*

*Praised be You, my Lord, through Sister Moon and the stars,
in heaven You formed them clear and precious and beautiful.*

Praised be You, my Lord, through Brother Wind, and through the air, cloudy and serene, and every kind of weather,

through whom You give sustenance to Your creatures.

Praised be You, my Lord, through Sister Water, who is very useful and humble and precious and chaste.

*Praised be You, my Lord, through Brother Fire, through whom You light the night,
and he is beautiful and playful and robust and strong.*

Praised be You, my Lord, through our Sister Mother Earth, who sustains and governs us, and who produces various fruit with colored flowers and herbs....

JustFaith Ministries

"Crossing Borders"

We hope you have been enjoying our Weekly Questions about Immigration. We will be registering people during the month of September for our JustFaith series, which begins on OCTOBER 3rd.

This Fall, St. Joseph's will be sponsoring an eight-week Thursday (6:30 – 9:00 pm) JustFaith workshop series on Immigration, beginning Oct 3rd, ending Nov 21st.

As participants, you will discuss topics like US Border Enforcement, possible paths for legalization for the undocumented, the Immigration Detention system, the push and pull of global migration. We will watch documentaries, attend a Spanish-language Sunday Mass at a migrant parish, think about our own family's immigration story, meet and talk with real people who are living in the limbo of undocumented immigrants.

Are you interested? Simply contact workshop coordinators Julia Buchholz (206-329-3323), Samantha Welte (samanthawelte@gmail.com) or email/talk with Deacon Steve Wodznowski.

In the meantime, we continue our "test questions" on Immigration.

Last Sunday's question: TRUE or FALSE: Senator John McCain (R) and Sen. Charles Schumer (D), members of a bipartisan immigration reform group in the Senate, both agree that immigration reform legislation will "grow the economy by an additional 3.3 per cent and decrease the federal budget deficits by $197 billion over the next ten years."

Answer: TRUE: The U.S. Senate managed to agree on a bill for reform of immigration just before the scheduled summer recess, and sent this bill on to the House of Representatives, which will begin discussion in mid-Sept. The two Senators mentioned above both agree: "No other bill Congress is considering would even remotely approach the economic growth, deficit reduction and long-term fiscal solvency that passing the new Immigration bill would achieve. None would even come close to saving Medicare and Social Security the way this bill does." Read the newspapers carefully to learn how the House of Representatives is responding to the Senate's Immigration Reform bill.

Faith, Hope and Love in Action

Who Are You Becoming?

It's an important question to ask as you begin each day! Our thoughts, words, choices, actions and inactions reveal who we are; but is this who we really want to be? The GoodNews People program is an exciting new program being offered at St. Joe's that addresses the question, "Who am I becoming?" in a dynamic and thought provoking way. GoodNews People will familiarize you with the biblical witness of Jesus and explore the richness of the Catholic faith in a variety of way that honor the hungers of the soul, the needs of adult learners, and the competing demands of busy people.

Through prayer and reflection in small faith groups, you will draw on the wisdom that emerges from listening deeply to God's presence and action in your life. GoodNews People engages the head and heart along with the hands and feet as it seeks to build the bonds of community and foster a deeper understanding of discipleship.

Join your fellow parishioners now. Sign up online at www.stjosephparish.org or in the back of church for the next two weekends. We have groups meeting at various times and locations. For more information contact Dn. ## St. Vincent de Paul

We often write to report about the people we help. This week, we'd like to tell you more about our role when we make home visits. The St. Vincent de Paul Society places a very high emphasis on listening carefully to the people who request our assistance. It is not unusual that some of these people are very lonely, often depressed, and ashamed or at least reluctant to ask for help.

One lady we see perhaps two or maybe three times a year loves to talk to us. She has a difficult-to-understand accent. But she is a delight to visit, even though underneath her friendly personality there is a lonely person. Still she manages well. She is the embodiment of "true grit." Another is a senior citizen, who requires many medications for several ailments. We do not see him very often. He is quiet but he is lonely too. He doesn't ask for much but it is not easy for him to ask. He is genuinely thankful for the $75.00 for his light bill or $50.00 for food.

The Vincentian ethic calls upon us to "judge not" but to be present in the spirit of Christ. We try to do this with each person with whom we spend the time it takes to find out what they need and how we can help. Sometimes the most important part is just listening.

St. Vincent de Paul now has collection boxes in the church vestibule and Parish Center to accept your donations of household goods and clothing. Donations to our thrift stores really helps fuel our work. And our thrift stores are a crucial part of our fundraising. When you "clean your closets" and bring us your donations you are helping the poor in a significant way.

We want to keep our donation contribution to programs high. It is currently 92 cents of every dollar donated going to programs. As a result, dropping off a few bags of goods and clothing donations at one of the drop-off boxes is convenient for you and saves us lots of money in gas and labor making a visit to pick them up.

If you have big items or a large number of bags or boxes of clothes and household goods, call our Donation Pick-Up Reservations Line at 206.767.3835 for assistance.
