Dear Friends & Companions, Peace of Christ!

Recently, preparing for morning mass, I was praying with a passage from the gospel of Matthew. In this story, the disciples are on the Sea of Galilee and are caught in a strong wind and rough seas. Looking up, they see Jesus coming to them across the waves. Though they are stunned, when Jesus tells them to take courage, Peter stands up and asks the Lord to summon him. "Come!" says Jesus, and Peter gets out of the boat and walks towards him. Though he grows fearful, amid the wind and the waves, and requires Jesus to save him, what struck me most in my prayer about this story is that Peter got out of the boat. Think about that! When everyone else was frozen in place, Peter got out of the boat. It doesn't matter, I think, that his nerve could not hold and that Jesus had to rescue him, the amazing thing is that, because of his love of Jesus, and despite all common sense and all his experience as a fisherman: Peter got out of the boat!

Describing the state of our Church under Pope Francis and of our Parish in these challenging and graced times, I keep returning to that image of Peter, climbing over the side and walking towards the Lord. Like that loving and imperfect fisherman, we move with faith into the storm, and continue to respond to the invitation of Jesus. We may not always be strong enough to accomplish, on our own, all that we desire, but we get out of the boat. We are not a community paralyzed by fear of the future; but a people moved by love, by hope, and by a deep desire to be with the Lord and to labor at his side. Though sometimes we are distracted—and start to sink—yet, as a community, I think we are seeing, more and more, the “sanctifying work of the Spirit” alive among us.

Thanks to many good hearts and generous hands—whether folded in prayer or lifted up in work—this year has been one of grace and growth for St. Joseph Parish. And, while I know it is Christ Jesus who calls and sustains us, I remain amazed and blessed by all of you who have shown the courage and the love to “get out of the boat” and move us closer and closer to God. The state of St. Joseph Parish is strong and growing because we, together, have taken up this mission, and our Parish will continue to grow so long as “all the baptized” allow the work of the Spirit to shine out.

During this second year of the Parish Strategic Plan—dubbed “the year of infrastructure”—we have made significant progress in building a framework on which our ministries can grow. Through the generosity of several donors, we have been able to put in place both hardware and software that allows better communication with parishioners and better information for our ministries. A new server gives us greater flexibility and power to use internet resources, while a new membership database allows us to know the growing Parish better and to respond to individual needs with increasing personalization and discretion. While never replacing the human connections that are at the core of our sacramental faith, these electronic tools help us communicate more effectively with members of the Parish, especially with our committees and commissions, our ministers and our volunteers; they help us remember key life-events, and connect with people whose histories are part of the St. Joseph story; they help us proclaim the gospel by empowering us to reach out to those who may otherwise be missed, and enabling us to make connections between ministries and needs in a parish that is no longer limited to Capitol Hill.

Likewise, with better technological resources—and the gifted leadership of Fr. Glen—we have been able to improve our website, making it more accessible and intuitive. In a project not dissimilar to the repair of Seattle’s “Mercer Mess” (though done in far less time), we have built a web presence that allows our many new members and our long-time parishioners to navigate the resources of our Parish: to discover new ministries and contact the right people, whether they are looking to volunteer or in need of some assistance. In this way, we open one more door, create one more path by which our community can come together and begin to realize that we, together are the Church.

Beyond technology, however, our Parish has also advanced in an infrastructure of engagement. The creation or reinvigoration of our Parish Commissions and Councils creates a venue for discernment and for the implementation of our mission across the Parish. Whether discussing Liturgy or Parish Life, finances or the education of young and old, the Councils and Commissions of our Parish draw from the many voices of this community, challenging us—to use an image from the poet, W.H. Auden—to sing “not in unison but in harmony.”

Finally, as called for in the Strategic Plan, and with the support of some generous and far-sighted donors, we have hired a Pastoral Assistant for Stewardship and Development, to help us secure the future of St. Joseph Parish and our various ministries. We have been given a great legacy at St. Joseph, both in our physical structure and in the history of care and ministerial support we have been able to offer our community and the larger Church. With Tina O’Brien as Pastoral Assistant, we honor the structures we have inherited, by building a new structure of Stewardship and support that is responsive and personal.

Yet, it should be noted, no structure is sufficient without the underlying commitment of our whole community. The Strategic Plan offers frameworks, enlivened and transformed only by the passion and generosity of the people of St. Joseph. In the coming year, as we begin to implement what we have so far only structured, it will be our task to evaluate constantly and to find those areas where the structures strengthen our graces and where they limit, where they encourage participation and where they allow others to back away. Only when we all share what we have of prayer, money, talent, or time—only when we climb out of the boat together for the love of the One who calls us—can we give power to the work of Christ among us, and ensure that St. Joseph will continue to be a sign of the presence of God, meeting the needs of God’s people with generous love and welcome. Thank you to all of you who have taken this wonderful step in faith, and to all of you who will take it in the year to come. We will become more fully the body of Christ when the work of Christ is shared in all our hands.

May God bless you and bless us all with fearless hearts, and with enough faith to get us out of the boat and into the hands of our Savior.

Your Gifts & Their Use: The Financials of St. Joseph¹

I am pleased to present our financials for the fiscal year 2013-2014. In this year of strengthening our infrastructure, we have examined how we organize ourselves—both as a staff and as a community—and have begun to put in place the materials needed to work better together. With the generous help of many in the community, we have activated Councils, Commissions and Committees, which will help us better live out our mission.

In this fiscal year we have:

- Developed and implemented a new parish membership database;
- Hired a new Pastoral Assistant for Stewardship and Development;
- Purchased a new server and replaced outdated computers;
- Improved on-line and building security;
- Begun the process of organizing and simplifying procedures to better serve parishioners' needs for information and ministry;
- Launched a new website, which we believe will better engage and connect our community.

Given all this activity, you may not be surprised to notice, as you look at our financials on the opposite page, a deficit of $101,271—but, you should know that this does not indicate inordinate spending. As we embarked on the 2013-2014 fiscal year, we accepted that an investment in our infrastructure was needed. This year we began that process. Furthermore, for only the second year, we are now reflecting depreciation on capital assets ($146,969 this year). This is a normal and important expense in most accounting, but has rarely been done in traditional parish bookkeeping.

Finally, one thing you won't see in the financials is a loan from the Archdiocese. I am pleased to share that although our initial plan was to borrow in order to reduce the debt from the Centennial Campaign shortfall, because of careful management, we have not had to do so, and have been actively reducing that debt.

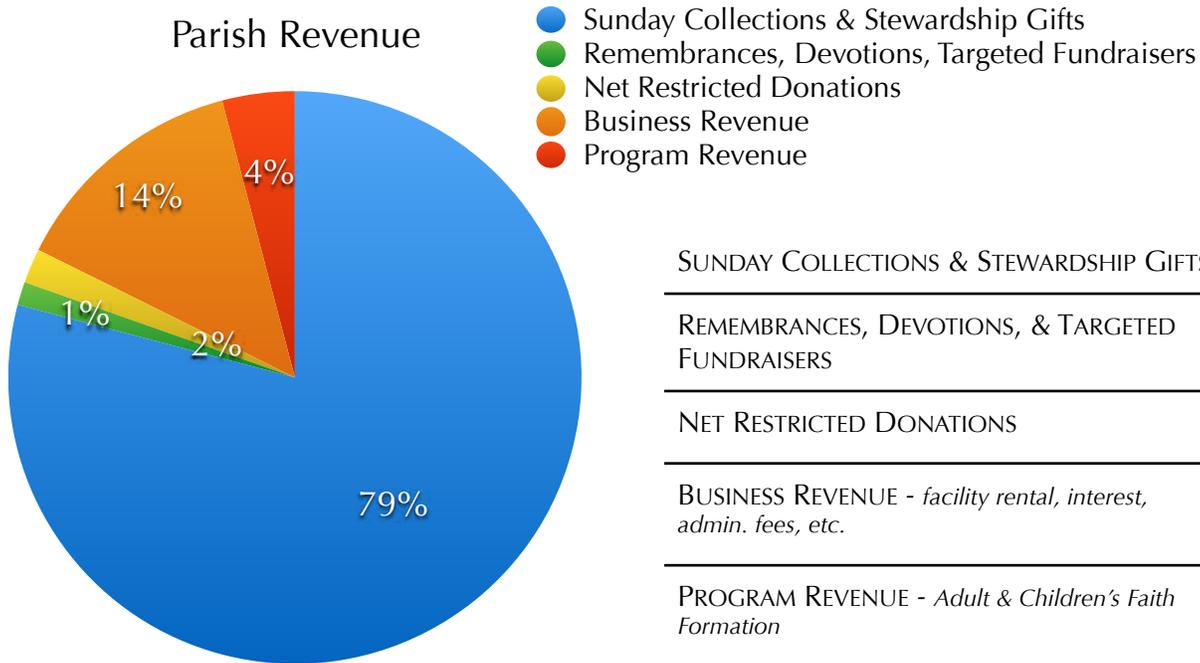

St. Joseph Parish has broken new ground this year in the building of our community and the strengthening of our systems, and we could not have accomplished so much without your continued support. I am grateful to serve the St. Joseph community and our shared mission, and I welcome any and all questions and comments that will allow us to work better together.

With gratitude,

Rebecca Frisino
Pastoral Assistant for Administration

"To provide a sacred space to nurture, affirm and renew the spirit of urban Native Peoples"

Five days a week, the Chief Seattle Club offers a place where urban American Indians and Alaska Natives--many of whom are homeless and low-income--can join to share a common meal, speak their own languages, and find peace, without fear of public censure or discrimination. In addition to providing food, showers, laundry facilities, and hygiene items, the Chief Seattle Club helps locate housing, provides job readiness training, and connects clients with social services. Chief Seattle Club is the only human service organization to connect homeless and low-income Native people to distant reservations, cultures, languages, and even to relatives living in this area. Many within our parish support the Chief Seattle Club. If you'd like more information about how you can become involved, please contact Deacon Steve at stevew@stjosephparish.org or 206.965.1646.

LITURGY AND WORSHIP

The Rosary At St. Joseph

St. Joseph parishioners have been praying the Rosary since the church was built. The grace of the prayer to the Holy Mother has lit the journey to Jesus through painful addictions in families, the loss of loved ones and when everything seems darkest. Many Catholics have historically viewed Mary as the person who will defeat evil on earth.

Praying the Rosary can help us face the often harsh realities of life with hope and grace. Many who've prayed the Rosary have experienced a sense of peacefulness during challenging times. Pray the Rosary at St. Joseph for the first time or the thousandth. People will help guide those who are just learning. Bring your own Rosary beads, count on your fingers or use a smartphone app such as iRosary.

Everyone is welcome to pray the Rosary, Mondays from 7 to 8 pm in the Parish Center Loyola Chapel.

St. Joseph Community extends its prayers and hopes for the following intentions: For Ken in his recovery from facial surgery . . . For Sonia to find comfort in her faith and friends after the death of a good friend . . . For Jon whose health is becoming precarious . . . For Dennis' wellbeing . . . For the intentions of Cindy, Michael, Rebecca and Cristina.

*"I can do all things in him who strengthens me.
Still, it was kind of you to share in my distress."
Philippians 4:13-14*

Eternal rest grant unto them, O Lord,
And let perpetual light shine upon them.

whose funeral was Friday.
For Tom Linxweiler, father of Catherine Green, who died on the east coast.
For Mary Ellen Malloy who passed away recently.
For Susan Robison who died unexpectedly and for her family.
