In the Power of the Cross

I ask myself: Is it possible to change direction? Can we get out of this spiral of sorrow and death? Can we learn once again to walk and live in the ways of peace? Invoking the help of God, I say: Yes, it is possible for everyone! From every corner of the world tonight, I would like to hear us cry out: Yes, it is possible for everyone! Or even better, I would like for each one of us, from the least to the greatest, including those called to govern nations, to respond: Yes, we want it! My Christian faith urges me to look to the Cross. How I wish that all men and women of good will would look to the Cross if only for a moment! There, we can see God's reply: violence is not answered with violence, death is not answered with the language of death. In the silence of the Cross, the uproar of weapons ceases and the language of reconciliation, forgiveness, dialogue, and peace is spoken.

-Pope Francis-

The message of the cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God.

-1 Corinthians 1:18-

In the 1 Samuel, the rulers of the people of Israel come to the aging Prophet, Samuel, and demand that he appoint a king over them, so that they may become “like all the nations.” At first, Samuel rejects the idea, knowing that it violates the desire of God, who longs to care for the people directly, through his appointed judges and prophets. But the people insist, and finally God tells Samuel to relent; but only after warning the people, “The governance of the king who will rule you will be as follows: He will take your sons and assign them to his chariots and horses, and they will run before his chariot. He will appoint from among them commanders of thousands and of hundreds. He will make them do his plowing and harvesting, and produce his weapons of war and chariotsy. . .On that day you will cry out because the king whom you have chosen, but the Lord will not answer you on that day.” (1Samuel 8:11-12).

Though more than two-thousand years old, this story seems strangely contemporary. After nearly 15 years of war, the leaders of our nation seem unchastened in their willingness to assign young men (and women) to run before their chariots, i.e., to die on foreign shores, or come home broken in body or mind, all for the sake of national “prestige” and the political future of the leader. Today, again, the relentless drumbeat may be heard in the halls of Congress, as members press for a new or at least a wider war—justified, as always, by talk of our duty as a great nation. With camera-conscious poses of strength, Senators and Representatives applaud as an Israeli Prime Minister offers the opiate of fear, and calls upon ordinary Americans to offer their sons and daughters anew, as runners before the chariots of national power and the self-interest of the few. Meanwhile, some of these same leaders call for greater interventions in Iraq and Syria, seemingly blind to the fact that it was our prior war that helped produce the evil we seek now to contain, and convinced that more blood and treasure can produce a result that our prior victory could not.
Counting upon the love of country found in so many young women and men, these elected kings and queens (of both parties) would create another generation of veterans wounded in body and soul; would spill the blood of our children on foreign shores, alleging American exceptionalism but behaving in a way contrary to our national tradition and to the grace we have received from a history of sacrifice and blessing. Invoking religion even while contradicting the teachings of Christ—who called us to put away the sword—we follow, instead, our desire for secure markets and safeguarded investments. Like Rome or Britain before us, we send our children to die and to kill, believing that such death and killing is somehow the appropriate (indeed, only) response to the violence and evil which confront us. With disdain for diplomacy—which might not work—we cling to our great weapons, which so often are believed, mistakenly, to be our great power.

Nor do these decades of war and preparation for war simply harm the good and patriotic citizens sent to serve in them; indeed, they rob all of us—especially the poor—by taking resources better used for infrastructure or education, for the exploration of space or the curing of drought, and turning them towards the production of weapons systems (and the subsequent occupation and reconstruction of foreign countries). Like the King of whom Samuel prophesied, who would make the citizens “do his plowing and harvesting, and produce his weapons of war,” Congress allocates trillions of dollars on weapons that either must never be used (i.e., our nuclear arsenal, which vastly exceeds any feasible need), or which are of single use (e.g., cruise missiles, explosive drones, etc.), and produce only destruction, and often the death of innocents. Nor is it only a few pacifists who see the profound fiscal and moral damage caused by this “spiral of sorrow and death.” As President Dwight Eisenhower said: “Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed.” This is not the voice of naïveté, but of one experienced in the suffering of war, who knows it to be among the greatest of human evils—an evil overcome not simply by building more bombs and creating more refugees, but by providing a society of justice, dignity, and hope, to which the human heart can aspire.

In the death and resurrection of Christ, a new vision of power arises: a vision contrary to the monarchical desires of the Israelites, and to the paternalistic and violent “nation building” of our modern republic. In Jesus, power comes through service and sacrifice, through a willingness to lay down one’s life for one’s friends. It comes in giving away one’s very body and blood, so that the beloved—even Judas the betrayer and Peter the denier—might be fed and uplifted. It comes in accepting even death, so that others might see how much their life means. And though it might seem counter-intuitive to us, the woeful descendants of Cain, the power which Jesus incarnates overthrows the Roman Empire and outlives Charlemagne. In Francis of Assisi, it rebuilds a degenerate Church; and in Bartolomé de las Casas, it defends the humanity of indigenous peoples against the power of the enslavers. In El Salvador, the blood shed through the will of the powerful gives way to the absurd weakness of Rutillo Grande and Oscar Romero. Even in Syria, we must believe, the voice of the 21 martyrs is at work today in the destruction of ISIS.

The Cross of Christ appears as foolish today as it did in the time of St. Paul; yet, beneath that Cross we are called to stand—armed only with faith that the One whose blood flowed on that cross, and flows still in our veins, will never abandon us, but will love us all into the kingdom of mercy and grace promised to God’s beloved.

Stations Of The Cross

Join us Fridays during Lent at 11:00 am in the Church. The devotion known as the Way of the Cross (or, sometimes, Stations of the Cross) began in Jerusalem, during the late 3rd or early 4th century, AD. As the Church became officially recognized, devotion to the places of Christ’s suffering and death led many on pilgrimage to Jerusalem—including Helena, mother of the Emperor Constantine. In Jerusalem, the sites of warship launched, every rocket fired signifies, in the final sense, a theft from those who hunger and are not fed, those who are cold and are not clothed.” This is not the voice of naïveté, but of one experienced in the suffering of war, who knows it to be among the greatest of human evils—an evil overcome not simply by building more bombs and creating more refugees, but by providing a society of justice, dignity, and hope, to which the human heart can aspire.

I confess to almighty God and to you, my brothers and sisters, that I have greatly sinned, in my thoughts and in my words, in what I have done and in what I have failed to do, through my fault, through my fault, through my most grievous fault. Therefore I ask Blessed Mary ever Virgin, all the Angels and Saints, and you, my brothers and sisters, to pray for me to the Lord our God.

Liturgy of the Word
First Reading
The LORD said to Samuel: “Fill your horn with oil, and be on your way. I am sending you to Jesse of Bethlehem, for I have chosen my king from among his sons.”

As Jesse and his sons came to the sacrifice, Samuel looked at Eliab and thought, “Surely the LORD’s anointed is here before him.” But the LORD said to Samuel: “Do not judge from his appearance or from his lofty stature, because I have rejected him. Not as man sees does God see, because man sees the appearance but the LORD looks into the heart.” In the same way Jesse presented seven sons before Samuel, but Samuel said to Jesse, “The LORD has not chosen any one of these.” Then Samuel asked Jesse, “Are these all the sons you have?” Jesse replied, “There is still the youngest, who is tending the sheep.” Samuel said to Jesse, “Send for him; we will not begin the sacrificial banquet until he arrives here.” Jesse sent and had the young man brought to them. He was ruddy, a youth handsome to behold and making a splendid appearance. The LORD said, “There—anoint him, for this is the one!” Then Samuel, with the horn of oil in hand, anointed David in the presence of his brothers; and from that day on, the spirit of the LORD rushed upon David.

Responsorial Psalm
Psalm 23

Cantor sings first then assembly repeats.

My shepherd is the Lord, nothing in deed shall I want.

Second Reading
Brothers and sisters: You were once darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Live as children of light, for light produces every kind of goodness and righteousness and truth. Try to learn what is pleasing to the Lord. Take no part in the fruitless works of darkness; rather expose them, for it is shameful even to mention the things done by them in secret; but everything exposed by the light becomes visible, for everything that becomes visible is light. Therefore, it says:

“Awake, O sleeper, and arise from the dead, and Christ will give you light.”

Gospel Acclamation

Praise to you, Lord Jesus Christ, king of end-less glory!
As Jesus passed by he saw a man blind from birth. His disciples asked him, “Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?” Jesus answered, “Neither he nor his parents sinned; it is so that the works of God might be made visible through him. We have to do the works of the one who sent me while it is day. Night is coming when no one can work. While I am in the world, I am the light of the world.” When he had said this, he spat on the ground and made clay with the saliva, and smeared the clay on his eyes, and said to him, “Go wash in the Pool of Siloam”—which means Sent—. So he went and was washed, and came back able to see.

His neighbors and those who had seen him earlier as a beggar said, “Isn’t this the one who used to sit and beg?” Some said, “It is, “ but others said, “No, he just looks like him.” He said, “I am.” So they said to him, “How were your eyes opened?” He replied, “The man called Jesus made clay and anointed my eyes and told me, ‘Go to Siloam and wash.’ So I went there and washed and was able to see.” And they said to him, “Where is he?” He said, “I don’t know.”

They brought the one who was once blind to the Pharisees. Now Jesus had made clay and opened his eyes on a sabbath. So then the Pharisees also asked him how he was able to see. He said to them, “He put clay on my eyes, and I washed, and now I can see.” So some of the Pharisees said, “This man is not from God, because he does not keep the sabbath.” But others said, “How can a sinful man do such signs?” And there was a division among them. So they said to the blind man again, “What do you have to say about him, since he opened your eyes?” He said, “He is a prophet.”

Now the Jews did not believe that he had been blind and gained his sight until they summoned the parents of the one who had gained his sight. They asked them, “Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How does he now see?” His parents answered and said, “We know that this is our son and that he was born blind. We do not know how he sees now, nor do we know who opened his eyes. Ask him, he is of age; he can speak for himself. His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jews, for the Jews had already agreed that if anyone acknowledged him as the Christ, he would be expelled from the synagogue. For this reason his parents said, “He is of age; question him.”

So a second time they called the man who had been blind and said to him, “Give God the praise! We know that this man is a sinner.” He replied, “If he is a sinner, I do not know. One thing I do know is that I was blind and now I see.” So they said to him, “What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?” He answered them, “I told you already and you did not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you want to become his disciples, too?” They ridiculed him and said, “You are that man’s disciple; we are disciples of Moses! We know that God spoke to Moses, but we do not know where this one is from.” The man answered and said to them, “This is what is so amazing, that you do not know where he is from, yet he opened my eyes. We know that God does not listen to sinners, but if one is devout and does his will, he listens to him. It is unheard of that anyone ever opened the eyes of a person born blind. If this man were not from God, he would not be able to do anything.” They answered and said to him, “You were born totally in sin, and are you trying to teach us?” Then they threw him out.

When Jesus heard that they had thrown him out, he found him and said, “Do you believe in the Son of Man?” He answered and said, “Who is he, sir, that I may believe in him?” Jesus said to him, “You have seen him, the one speaking with you is he.” He said, “I do believe, Lord,” and he worshiped him. Then Jesus said, “I came into this world for judgment, so that those who do not see might see, and those who do see might become blind.”

Some of the Pharisees who were with him heard this and said to him, “Surely we are not also blind, are we?” Jesus said to them, “If you were blind, you would have no sin; but now you are saying, ‘We see,’ so your sin remains.

Homily

Father John D. Whitney, S.J.
The Nicene Creed

I believe in one God, the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth, of all things visible and invisible.

I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God from God, Light from Light, true God from true God, begotten, not made, consubstantial with the Father; through him all things were made. For us (men) and for our salvation he came down from heaven,

At the words that follow, up to and including ‘and became man’, all bow.

and by the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary, and became man. For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate, he suffered death and was buried, and rose again on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures. He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of the Father. He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead and his kingdom will have no end.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord, the giver of life, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, who with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified, who has spoken through the prophets.

I believe in one, holy, catholic and apostolic Church. I confess one Baptism for the forgiveness of sins and I look forward to the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come. Amen.

Christ Be Our Light

Farrell

1. Long-ing for light, we wait in darkness.
2. Long-ing for peace, our world is troubled.
3. Long-ing for food, many are hungry.
4. Long-ing for shelter, many are homeless.
5. Man-y the gifts, man-y the people,

Long-ing for truth, we turn to you.
Long-ing for hope, many despair.
Long-ing for water, many still thirst.
Long-ing for warmth, many are cold.
Man-y the hearts that yearn to be long.

Make us your own, your holy people,
Your word alone has pow’r to save us.
Make us your bread, broken for others,
Make us your building, sheltering others,
Let us be ser-vants to one another,

Light for the world to see.
Make us your living voice.
Shared un-til all are fed.
Walls made of living stone.
Making your kingdom come.

Refrain

Christ, be our light! Shine in our hearts. Shine through the darkness.

Christ, be our light! Shine in your Church gathered today.

Ignatius & Zen
Spiritual Exercises

Friday, April 10, 5 – 7 pm
LeRoux Room, Student Center, Seattle University

If you have an interest in the Spiritual Exercises of Saint Ignatius and would like to know more about how it could learn from Zen, or if you have an interest in Zen and would like to know more about how it could learn from the Spiritual Exercises, we would like to invite you to Ignatius and Zen: Spiritual Exercises on Friday, April 10 from 5 PM until 7 PM in the LeRoux Room (STCN 160) in the Student Center on the campus of Seattle University. It will be hosted by Ruben Habito, author of the recent Zen and the Spiritual Exercises (Orbis, 2013) as well as other books, including Living Zen, Loving God (Wisdom, 1995) and Healing Breath: Zen for Christians and Buddhists in a Wounded World (Wisdom, 2006), that more generally address the dialogue between Zen and Christianity.

Ruben L.F. Habito was born in the Philippines and is a former Jesuit priest turned master practicing in the Sanbo Kyodan lineage of Zen. In his early youth he was sent to Japan on missionary work where he began Zen practice under Yamada Koun-roshi, a Zen master who taught many Christians students, which was unusual for the time. In 1988, Ruben received Dharma transmission from Yamada Koun. Ruben left the Jesuit order in 1989, and in 1991 founded the lay organization Maria Kannon Zen Center in Dallas, Texas. He has taught at Perkins School of Theology, Southern Methodist University since 1989 where he continues to be a faculty member. He is married and has two sons.

Habito has been a pioneer, both in practice and theory, of the interrelation and mutual illumination between the Spiritual Exercises and Zen meditation. This is a rare opportunity to participate in the dialogue between these two venerable practices.

The event is sponsored by the Seattle University Institute for Catholic Thought and Culture, the Seattle University EcoSangha, the Pigott-McCone Chair, and Seattle University Mission and Ministry. To RSVP, please e-mail ICTC@seattleu.edu

Where Jesus is there is love for brothers and sisters, there is the commitment to safeguarding their life and their health and to respecting the environment and nature. This is the hope that never disappoints, the hope which Jesus gives! This is particularly important in this beautiful land which needs to be protected and conserved, which requires the courage to say ‘no’ to every form of corruption and unlawfulness — we all know what this kind of corruption and unlawfulness is called — it requires all of us to be servants of the truth and to assume an evangelical lifestyle, which is demonstrated in the giving of oneself and in attention to the poor and the outcast. Take care of the poor and the outcast! The Bible is full of these exhortations. The Lord says: it is not important to me that you do this or that, it is important to me that the orphan is cared for, that the widow is cared for, that the outcast person is heard, that creation is protected. This is the Kingdom of God!

Chalice Making

Pictures from our CFF2 chalice making workshop two Sundays ago: Children take clay to create a ornamental chalice to remember their First Communion. Once these dry, they are fired in the kiln and then glazed with vibrant colors and fired again. Look for them to be displayed on First Eucharist weekend, May 2 & 3. Thank you to the many parents who stayed to help during this workshop and also to Darcy Marlow for once again lending her talents and artistic gifts to this project.

The Voices of the Church:
Discerning Our Way to the Synod on the Family

“In this quest to seek and find God in all things there is still an area of uncertainty. There must be. You must leave room for the Lord, not for our certainties; we must be humble. Uncertainty is in every true discernment that is open to finding confirmation in spiritual consolation.”

-Pope Francis-

19 March 2015
7:00 pm to 9:00 pm
St. Joseph Social Hall
19th & Aloha
Seattle, WA

Please come and join Fr. John Whitney, S.J. along with your neighbors and friends in a discussion of the coming Church Synod on the Family.

In a call to the whole Church, Pope Francis has invited us to reflect and respond to the issues that will be discussed at the upcoming Synod of Bishops, to be held in Rome in October. The topic of the Synod is Family Life, and it follows on the heels of the extraordinary session held last October.

This gathering will include a brief explanation of the Synod and its structure, along with the questions given by Pope Francis to the Church around the world.

In helping to guide our response, Fr. Whitney will try to map out an approach to the questions using the Ignatian method of discernment. He will then invite questions and dialogue among the gathered community.

We will also take time to look at various instruments of response that have been brought forth, both by the Archdiocese of Seattle and other, independent bodies.

The goal of the evening is not so much to get a single, univocal response, but to better understand the material at hand, and the ways in which the voice of both individual Catholics and communities may be best represented.

We are called to be a discerning community—loving and diverse, trusting in the movement of the Spirit in the whole body of the Church. We must listen to one another with a humility and courage that can allow the Spirit to be encountered. This is what our evening will be about.

Rice Bowl

Each year during Lent, our parishioners rely on the CRS Rice Bowl program as an inspiration for prayer, fasting, and giving, helping us to focus our resolve to follow Jesus’ call to live in solidarity with the poorest and most vulnerable.

We journey with CRS Rice Bowl to Lebanon to be present to a people who themselves are on a journey. Here we meet a family of Syrian refugees, a family perhaps not so unlike our own. We are challenged through our almsgiving this week to reach out to those who are forced to flee their homes, who are seeking shelter in a land of peace.

Know that 25% of contributions remain in this archdiocese for grants to organizations such as St. Martin de Porres, Sacred Heart Shelter, the Food Bank at St. Mary’s, and hundreds of other organizations. 75% of contributions help fund development projects around the world to produce more food, increase income, and address poverty.

As a community, let’s once again consider these simple, yet powerful, ways to bring Lenten spirituality to life each day.

CCS Needs your Help

Catholic Community Services Pregancy Support Center maintains a community garden to help support their clients towards a sustainable, independent life. There is an effort underway this year to teach container gardening and a real need for donated containers for planting of produce for client use. The planters can be used or new and will be collected at the back of church for delivery to Catholic Community Services during WE ARE ST JOSEPH DAY activities. Please bring planters for this worthwhile use.
